1. Moscow directives pertaining to German police affairs go to Marshal Sokolovski. They are said to cover even the most insignificant detail. Sokolovski in turn informs his Political Adviser, Ambassador Semeonov, and then passes the directive simultaneously to the following:
 - a. Lt. Gen. Dratvin, his executive office for SVAG
 - b. Col. Gen. Kabanov, his Deputy for Civil Affairs
 - c. Maj. Gen. Russikh, his Deputy for Political Affairs.
2. Kabanov transmits the directive in question through his executive officer Maj. Gen. Gorokhov, Chief of OVD/SVAG, to the German police. Gorokhov translates the directive into German and transmits it to the German Administration of the Interior as his own. The GAI, in compliance with the directive received, instructs its subordinate units.
3. Russikh, through his executive officer, Col. Tyulpanov, translates Soviet views on internal German affairs of a political nature into action through the media of direct contacts with German politicians and parties, through press and radio, and so forth. Col. Tyulpanov is in charge of all press and radio propaganda. He is also responsible for the political line of the Central Secretariat of the SED.
